PROFILE

Sijin Jung is an attorney whose practice focuses on corporate and commercial law, medical malpractice litigation, maritime and seafarer matters, criminal defense, and administrative litigation. He advises both domestic and international clients on corporate governance, mergers and acquisitions, foreign investment, and cross-border commercial transactions, while also representing clients in complex litigation involving corporate disputes, medical negligence, and regulatory matters. He is committed to delivering practical, strategic, and commercially sound legal solutions tailored to each client's objectives.

In addition to his legal practice at Baekkyung Law Firm, Mr. Jung serves as an Adjunct Professor, teaching Commercial Law at the university level. He also serves as a Patient Advocate in medical dispute mediation, reflecting his commitment to public service and professional excellence. His practice covers both preventive legal advisory services and high-stakes dispute resolution, enabling clients to manage legal risks effectively while protecting their business and personal interests.

Mr. Jung continues to expand his expertise in corporate governance, shareholders' and board disputes, cross-border M&A, foreign investment, corporate compliance, and medical litigation. Through continuous research and practical experience, he strives to provide sophisticated legal services and to serve as a trusted long-term legal advisor for both businesses and individuals.

With the establishment of the Busan Maritime and International Commercial Court, Mr. Jung has been actively involved in cross-border disputes, including the recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards in Korea. He also represents foreign companies seeking to recover unpaid receivables from Korean importers and regularly advises foreign-invested enterprises on a wide range of corporate, commercial, and regulatory matters. Drawing on his experience in international business transactions and dispute resolution, he provides practical and effective legal support to overseas clients doing business in Korea.
